

A great "hoppportunity" for a bunny lover!

It's a long story, but basically my dad has a HUGE heart and a CRAZY neighbor. After retiring from spoiling rabbits with love, food and attention, he gave his hand-built mansion hutch to a neighbor that wanted to raise rabbits as a form of therapy. Well, now she is going through a divorce and facing foreclosure and the poor innocent rabbits are facing no electricity.

My dad already takes care of them, she has pretty much abandoned them. But he is dealing with some health issues and simply cannot keep doing this, especially when she disappears. He is looking for an extremely loving home/homes for the bunnies. There are seven total - the momma, one neutered boy, and five girls. So no chance that you will end up with more bunnies! He would love to be able to keep them together, but if they have to be separated, he will accept that, as long as you pass the animal loving background check. He just wants to make sure they aren't put in a tiny cage and forgotten about and that they receive daily love.

The hutch goes with the bunnies, and let me tell you, this is a five-star hotel as far as rabbits are concerned! It is wired for electricity and has heat lamps and a water heater. The hutch is about 25 feet long by about 3 feet wide. It comes apart, but it will take a few people to move it. But we can help!

If you are interested, know someone who is, or just have more questions, please let me know. These little guys are so cute and loving and they just need someone who has time to love them back. My cell number is 303-257-3019 and of course you can find me in the Planning Department or at ext. 6733.

Thank you,
Mandy Wells

The hutch is built with excellent craftsmanship. There are three sections that the bunnies can move to freely - the living room and dining room, the kids' bedroom, and mom's bedroom.

The white blanket is just adding extra warmth to the already heated water.

Lunch time in Bunnyland. They enjoy rabbit food, and love alfalfa and apples. They are just a tad spoiled!

A view into the kid's bedroom, equipped with an emergency water and snack center for those late night munchies.
